His coming had been anticipated with much interest. He had been advised that here he would be in the heart of "the enemy's country."

In addition, he was preceded by Consressman Fowler of New Jersey, until recently chairman of the house committee on bearing and currency, who was presented as having severely criticised what are supposed to be some of the Rhode Island senator's banking ideas.

The odds on Howard Pearson, the wineer of the sixth race, were raised from 7 to 1, to 29 to 1, and even as high as 40 to 1. Handbook makers reluctantly admitted tonight that they lost heavily on the race and many of the Denver bookmakers refused today to pay bets on the race. Two of them, it is said, were forced out of business.

A car on the train was looted of several hundred dollars' worth of sliks four weeks ago, and two weeks ago two New York Central detectives—William Hennessey and Frank Bouquard—were ordered to ride the train between Buffalo and this city. Both were well armed, Hennessey having a double barreled shotgun slung over his shoulder. No signs of car thleves appeared until tonight. When the train stopped at Lyons at 9 o'clock the detectives and Express Messenger R. D. Beard noticed three men with a large electric flash lamp walking along the tracks examining the cars. When they reached the car in which were the offitracks examining the cars. When they reached the car in which were the officials they mounted the steps and writted for the train to pull out. The locomotive was soon speeding a mile a minute and the men with a skeleton key turned the lock. A large chain still held the door and this was soon pulled from the woodwork by a claw-hammer.

Ordered to Throw Up Their Hands. Two men entered the car and were quickly covered by the officers' guns and ordered to throw up their hands. Too surprised to move, they falled to obey. A second order was effective and the prisoners were shackled. A search was made for the third man, but no trace of him could be found.
